THANKSGIVING MORNING
ABSOLUTELY NOTHING HAPPENED
HAPPY THANKSGIVING FOOLS
FINDS DIAMOND RING IN THANKSGIVING TURKEY!

It was the day before Thanksgiving and the schoolroom hummed with voices and bustling activity. Porky Pig and a half dozen other small boys were busily hammering and sawing and pounding nails. Other boys and girls were stretching big sheets on a clothesline across the front of the room. Still others were stringing electric wires to make a row of footlights.

They were making the [illegible] for the Thanksgiving play to be given that night, a play about Priscilla the Puritan Maid and John Alden.

Petunia stood in front of the cloakroom mirror, gazing at herself in the [illegible] skirt, the white fichu and [illegible] of Priscilla.

"I'm so excited!" she cried to Porky who stopped his work long enough to admire her costume. "Isn't it wonderful that the class elected me to be the leading lady?"

"It s-sure is!" Porky agreed proudly. Then his round little face sobered. "I'm happy for you, P-Petunia. But I feel [illegible] for P-Pansy P-Pig. She w-wanted [illegible] to be P-P[illegible] in the play."

[illegible]

those you, b-because you w-were the best Priscilla." Then he bustled away to his hammering and sawing.

A few minutes later Petunia was hurrying down the hall when she heard a muffled sobbing from the closet where the janitor kept the brooms. She opened the door and peered inside.

Little Pansy Pig was huddled in the darkness, weeping bitterly. Her tear-[illegible] eyes looked up sadly at Petunia.

"Why, Pansy Pig!" Petunia exclaimed quickly. "What's the matter?"

"Nothing," Pansy choked. "Please go away, Petunia."

"I won't go till you tell me what's wrong," Petunia insisted. "Maybe I can do something to help."

"Nobody can help," Pansy's voice was quivering with fresh sobs. "I guess I'm silly to cry like this. But I'm so disappointed about not being Priscilla. You see, my father's home on leave from the army and I wanted him to be proud of me. When we were trying-out for the part of Priscilla, I wrote him that I might be the leading lady. And now I won't even be in the play."

"I'm sorry they chose me, instead of you. Honestly, I am," Petunia said sympathetically. "I didn't know it meant so much to you."

"Please don't be sorry, Petunia," Pansy begged. "You'll be a much better Priscilla than I would. You're such a good actress.

But Petunia [illegible] sorry. All through [illegible] of the first act [illegible] little face danced [illegible] suddenly, as she [illegible] Priscilla, Petunia [illegible] going to do

The first act rehearsa[illegible] finally, and Petunia walked [illegible] the "stage" to wait while Porky and the other stagehands changed [illegible]. There was a big chunk of wood in her path. Petunia stumbled over it and lurched forward. A[illegible] screamed shrilly.

The teacher [illegible] rushed to her [illegible] chair.

"My ankle!" Petun[illegible] I've sprained it! I can[illegible] I can't be Priscilla! Oh [illegible]

"Oh, dear!" the teacher [illegible] frantic voice. "Poor Petun[illegible] ry! And what will we d[illegible]

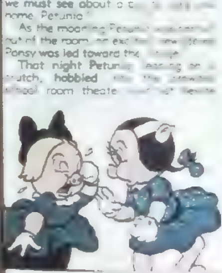
Petunia groaned and [illegible] tured ankle.

"Pansy Pig can be [illegible] gasped between [illegible] the speeches. She [illegible] and go on w[illegible]

"That's right. [illegible] teacher cried, relief [illegible] we must see about a [illegible] home, Petunia."

As the moaning Petunia [illegible] out of the room, [illegible] Pansy was led toward the [illegible].

That night Petunia, leaning on a crutch, hobbled [illegible] school room theate[illegible]



[illegible]

[illegible] It wasn't for that accident, Pe[illegible] [illegible] happy!"

[illegible] Petunia gave [illegible] to Pansy [illegible] leg.
